

Sensory Development

What it is

Your child's ability to take in and process information about the outside world using their senses.

Why it matters

Your child's brain needs the information it receives from their senses to learn what things are (for example to recognize what they see or to hear words that help them understand what things are called).

About Us

We provide developmental intervention for children during the critical period from birth to three within a caregiver collaboration model.

www.earlystarttherapy.com